RICHARD B. SYLVESTER. - - Editor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., OCT. 5, 1885

A well-known civil-service reformer dining with a friend here in Washingten last night, expressed his opinion that the President would not recor struct the Civil-Service Commission until after the 3d of November. This opinion was expressed in such a manner as to lead his heavers to believe that he knew what he was talking about. He did not seem to wish to exeate the impression that the recon struction would then be made to serve any particular political end, or that it was now being delayed for political reasons, and yet he left the door open for the conjecture that the President might possibly be influenced in his selections by the result of the present campaign in New York.

Around the same table the subject was further discussed, and the additional statement was forthcoming that the resignation of Commissioner Thoman had been at the disposal of the President for some time, and that the old commission would have been en tirely though gracefully relegated to private life very soon after the famous correspondence between the President public had not the President desired to have some of its component parts hold together until he saw his way clear to frame un entirely new one.

This he is said to be unprepared to do until the people of his own State shall have given some unmistakable expression of the heartiness of the support they are willing to accord him in his present views on the subject.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

About the only real cause for appr hension that there will be war in Europe, growing out of the Roumellan Lusiness, is the attitude of the little ten-by-one kingdoms adjacent to Turkey. Prince Alexander of Bulgaria having by the aid of Russia secured the Ronmellan slice, Greece and Service are passing up their plates for some of the fowl with stuffing. Servia is restless and intends to make an attemp to extend her boundary southward that she may acquire territory as an offset to Bulgaria's acquisition. And Greece also comes in with a demand for increased domain.

In the meanwhile Turkey is doing her best to get an army mobilized, not, it is thought, with so much of an idea of regaining Roumella as to prevent further encreachments upon her terrivery little as powers, and will hardly be able to make much of a disturbance ensiness is the fact that Prince Bismarck is advising Turkey and seems to be endeavering to give her some of his backbone. Such is not known to be the fact, but wherever Bismarck appenrs, especially when it is known exactly what he is after European nations as a rule have a cold shiver running down the small of their backs. While the cable is telling us daily about the warlike preparations in the East it is hardly probable that the misunderstanding will result in a war. The Turk is by no means anxious to hasten his inevitable departure from Europe.

A MUCH-MARRIED BISHOP.

Bishop Sharp of the Mormon Church was arrested some time ago for violating the Edmunds law against polygamy. The Bishop, who is a very numerously married man, in fact one of the mos married men even in Utah, first pleaded not guilty. He afterward changed that plea to one of guilty, and in doing so made a rather curious statement to the court. He acknowledged the possession of a good sized harem, but said that he married the several Mrs. Sharpes years ago when there was no law which made an offense of plural marriages, The parties to his frequent covenants were most profoundly convinced that in doing what they did they were obey-

The Bishop also pleaded guilty to a large assortment of children, most of whem have reached maturity, and thought that the court could readily conceive his discomfiure and the discomfiture of the Mrs. Sharpe combination when it became known that the Edmunds law had been enacted. He spoke dolefully on that point, and regretted that he had, as it were, been broken up in his business. But he is sensible man, is Bishop Sharp. He had come to the conclusion that he ruling Providence shall decree greater religious tolerance in this land," and has so arranged his family relations as to conform with the requirements of

It took a good deal of time and much rouble for him to "arrange his family relations" so as to make them legal, but he has done so; and it is greatly to his credit. The judge was lenient toward the bishop and did not plunge his multiplied households into grief by sentencing the offender to a term of Imprisonment. He thought the bishop's declared intention to conform to the law would do more good than any imprisonment the court could impose. So he fined him $300 and costs and the bishop returned to the bosoms of his families.

It is to be hoped that his repentance is a true one, and that he will adhere to !

It may be, as our correspondent states, that Mr. Nugeet has made a little mistake of forty years in his age, but the old gentleman was in to see us the other day and began to talk about things that happened in '81, '82 and so on as though they were only occurrences of day before yesterday. We supposed at first that he referred to events of the enriy part of the last administration, but, come to find out, he menut '81, '82 and so on a hundred years ago. What are we to do in such a case? Mr. Nugent has clearly the best of the argument, because there's notody living old enough to swear him out of court.—ED, CHITIC.]

Charles Eghert Craddock's new American nevel, "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains" is just out from the press of Houghton, Minth & Co., Boston, and will be much sought after, not only because of the popularity of the author's previous stories, "In the Tennessee Mountains," "Hown the Ravine, "etc., but on account of the recent disclosure of the author's personality. The scene of the present fiction is laid in East Tennessee and the incidents of its remarkable plot are unwoven with such dramatic force, its characters are so well depicted and its seenic descriptions painted so vividly, that the book is certain to take high rank in the literature of the day. It is for sale at Beall's and Brentano's.
